

Flat scoubi or s'getti may be used for this project. S'getti is made of scoubi material, but it is round and hollow, essentially a narrow tube. We recommend S'getti for this project as it will take less time and produce a cleaner looking finished project.

For a wristlet, use about 1.25 yards of each color. For a lanyard use between 3 and 3.5 yards of each color. Feed two pieces of scoubi into the base of a lanyard hook or keyring. Match up the ends of the scoubi so that the lanyard hook is about in the center of the scoubi strands.

Arrange the two strands in a loose X shape in the lanyard hook.

3.

Arrange the strands as shown in the picture to the left, with both ends of one color on the right and both ends of the other color on the left of the lanyard hook.

4. THE DIAMOND STITCH

Move Strand A to the left, behind Strand B and Strand C, and position it between Strand C and Strand D.

Move Strand A to the right, over Strand C, and position it between Strand C and strand B (similar to how you would make a 3 strand braid).

You are half way through the stitch!

Move strand D to the right, behind Strand C and Strand A, and position it between Strand A and Strand B.

Move strand D to the left, over Strand A, and position it between Strand A and Strand C.

Gently tighten the stitch until it looks similar to the picture on the left.

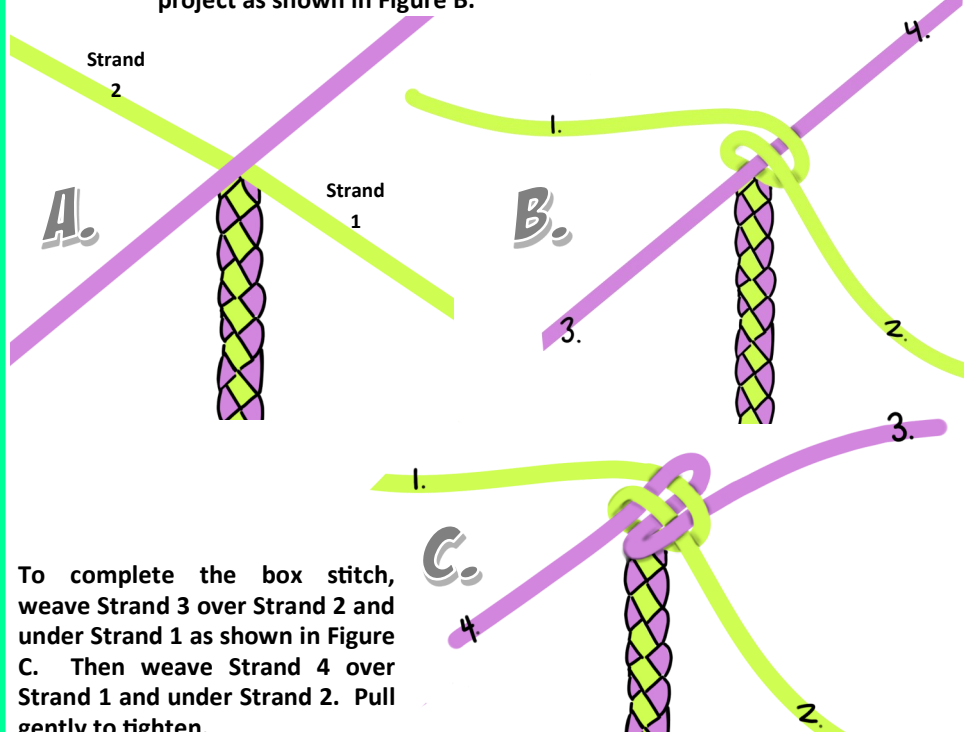

5.

Repeat the diamond stitch (Step #4) until the project is the desired length or the tails are about 10-12 inches in length. The pattern should resemble the picture below

6.

When you are ready to finish the project, secure your work by making one box stitch as shown below. First, lay out the strands in an X pattern as shown in Figure A below. Then, make two loops with Strand 1 and Strand 2 by moving them to the opposite side of the project as shown in Figure B.

To complete the box stitch, weave Strand 3 over Strand 2 and under Strand 1 as shown in Figure C. Then weave Strand 4 over Strand 1 and under Strand 2. Pull gently to tighten.

7.

Make another box stitch as shown in Step 6, but keep this one loose. Feed the lanyard hook end of the project through the loose box stitch and tighten. This will close the loop of your lanyard or wristlet.

8.

Make additional box stitches around the end of the project (as shown in Step 7). The stitches should be a little loose so the end of the project can slide through the center of the stitches. This will make your finished lanyard adjustable! Make approximately 1-3 inches of box stitches.

Finish the project similar to how you finish the box stitch project, move each strand to the right and feed it around the loop of the last stitch. Trim the ends to a desired length.
